Wine production in Sicily, Italy

Sicily is the biggest wine growing region of Italy. The region includes also the island of Pantelleria (South-West) and the Islands of Lipari (North-East). Since July 2005 there is DOCG classified wine available. Nevertheless the DOCG wines only amount to 10 % of the total wine production – but at a steady growing pace. There are 23 DOC-wines, of which many are unknown. These wines can be sold under the region “Sicily” – to enhance the origin. There are also excellent table wines IGP. IGPT wines carry the origin “Terre Siciliane” on their label.

Just 25% of production is bottled on the Island. The rest is sold in bulk mostly to the wineries in the North of Italy which bottle the wine or make blends . The total wine production in Sicily is about 5,5 to 6 mio. hl.
